

BE A WOMAN.

Oh I've heard a gentle mother,
At the twilight hour began, Pleading with a son, on duty, Urging him to be a man.
But unto her blue-eyed daughter, Though with love's words quite as ready, Points she out the other duty, "Strive my dear, to be a lady!"

What's a lady? Is it something Made of hoops and silks, and airs, Used to decorate the parlor,
Like the fancy rugs and chairs?
Is it one that wastes on novels Every feeling that is human?
If 'tis this to be a lady?
'Tis not this to be a woman.

Mother, then, unto your daughter Speak of something higher far, Than to be mere fashion's lady—"Woman" is the brightest star.
If, in your strong affection, Urging your son to be a true man, Urging your daughter on less strongly To raise up to be a woman.

Yes, a woman—brightest model Of that light and perfect being;
The mind, the soul, and body, Blend to work out life's great duty—
Be a woman—naught is higher On the glided list of fame;
There's no brighter, holier name.

Be a woman—on to duty,
Raise the world from all that's low, Place high in the social heaven Virtue's fair and radiant bow.
Lend thy influence to each effort That shall raise our nation;
Be a woman—glorious duty,
Be a brave, true, whole-souled woman.
[N. Y. Observer.]

"Old Hundred."
If it be true that Luther composed that tune, and if the worship of mortals is carried on the wings of angels to Heaven, how often has he heard the declaration: "They are singing 'Old Hundred' now!" The solemn strain carries us back to the times of the reformers—Luther and his devoted band. He, doubtless, was the first to strike the grand old chords in the public sanctuary of his own Germany. From his Stenorian lungs rolled, vibrating not through the vaulted cathedral roof, but along a grand arch, the eternal heavens. He wrought into each note his own sublime faith, and stamped it with that faith's immortality.
Hence it can not die. Neither men nor angels will let it pass into oblivion.

The dear little children, looking with wondering eyes on this strange world, have lipped it. The sweet young girl, whose tomestone told of sixteen summers—she whose pure innocent face haunted you with its mild beauty—loved "Old Hundred," and she sang it, closed her eyes, and seemed communing with the angels who were so soon to claim it. He whose "manhood" was devoted to the service of God, and he who with the white had placed over his laboring breast, loved "Old Hundred;" and though sometimes his lips only move way down in his heart, so soon to cease its throbs, the holy melody was sounding. The dear white-haired old father, with his tremulous voice how he loved "Old Hundred." Do you see him now sitting in the venerable armchair, his hands crossed over the head of his cane, his silvery locks floating off from his hallowed temples, and a tear stealing down his care-worn, furrowed cheeks, that thin, quivering, faltering sound, now bursting forth, now listening for in vain? If you do not, we do; and from such lips, hallowed by four-score years' service in the Master's cause, "Old Hundred" sounds, indeed, a sacred melody.

You may fill your choir with Sabbath prima donnas, whose caring notes emulate the steeple and cost about as much—but give us the spirit-tones of the Lutheran hymn, sung by old and young together—Martyrs have hallowed it: it has gone up from the band of saints. The old churches, where generation after generation have worshipped, and where many scores of the dead have been carried and laid before the altar where they gave themselves to God, seem to breathe of "Old Hundred;" from vestibule to tower top; the air is haunted with its spirit.

Think a moment of the assembled company who have at different times and in different places joined in the familiar tune.
Throng upon throng—the strong, the gentle, the brave, the beautiful, the rapt faces, all beaming with inspiration of the heavenly sounds.

"Old Hundred!" King of the sacred band of "sacred airs!" Never shall our ears grow weary of hearing, or our tongues of singing thee. And when we get to Heaven who knows but what the first triumphal strains that welcome us may be:

"Be thou, Oh God! exalted high!"

HOLLAND WITHOUT USURY LAWS.—The case of Holland furnishes a striking proof of the correctness of the theory of free trade in money. The rate of interest has been for a very long period, lower in Holland than anywhere else in Europe, and yet it is the only country in which usury laws have been totally unknown, where capitalists are allowed to demand and borrowers pay any rates of interest. Notwithstanding all the violent changes of the government, and the extraordinary disturbance of her financial concerns since 1780, the rate of interest in Holland has continued comparatively steady. During the whole of that period persons who could offer unexceptionable security have been able to borrow at from 2 to 5 1/2 cent; nor has the average rate of interest charged on capital advanced on the worst pieces of security, ever exceeded 6 or 7 per cent., except when the government were negotiating a forced loan.
But in England, where the law declared that not more than 5 per cent. should be taken, the rate of interest for money advanced on the best landed security varied, in the same period, from 5 to 16 or 17 per cent., or about five times as much as in Holland.
